

Preventive Computer Maintenance

Reason 1. Security

Regardless if you have virus protection doing scheduled updates and scans, and you have a strong firewall, you can still get hacked or have someone spying on you or fall victim to identity theft. Doing regular updates, checking event logs, etc. is just a few other things you can do. Even if you don't surf the web, or download anything, if your computer is online, you can get hacked. If your computer is simply attached to the local network (which has Internet) and no one uses that computer, that's even worse! It's a security threat to the rest of your network. TwinBytes will watch your back for Hackers, Spys, Trojans & privacy.

Reason 2. Stability

Although Security is important for business & personal use, stability is more important for business, you can't afford down time. If you consider how much it costs to maintain your computer, vs. how much would it cost your business to be without a computer for even just a few hours, you'll know the value. TwinBytes helps reduce chances of problems before it happens. Plan to replace a dying hard drive during down time rather than a surprise. We help improve overall stability.

Reason 3. Performance

Similar to reason #2, performance doesn't affect personal use as much as it can business. You need to get as much done during the day as possible. Time is money. You buy a fast computer, you want to keep it performing at top speed. Get more work done in less time, and go home early.
